PRESIDENT'S NOTES by President Tom Hessler COL, USA (Ret.)

I wish first to welcome some new blood to our Board of Directors who were elected at our November dinner. They are Joe Puett, Secretary; Joe Britton, JROTC Director; and Kevin Peterson, Membership Director. They will officially take office at our January dinner meeting. Treasurer Bob Abney, Director John Black, Director Gene Fenstermacher, and Director Jan Cole were reelected to a new term. Since I have not been impeached, I will automatically stay on the board as our Immediate Past President. While we will start the year without two VPs, we will continue to look to fill these positions. It is not too late to volunteer to fill one of the positions. The President, with the consent of the Board, may fill these positions. I suggest that if you have any interest at all, to just come to one of your Board meetings to observe the workings of the Board. We meet the day before our dinner meetings. They are held at the Landmark Café. We start around 1130 by ordering lunch and chat awhile. The formal meeting starts at noon and usually is over by 1300.

Our November dinner speaker was a hit. Judge Tim Dickerson briefed us on his Court Assisted Recovery program. Of particular interest was how the program includes what is known as Veterans Court. Veterans Courts are popping up all over the state and the country at large. As the name implies, these are special court sessions that deal with veterans that have particular issues. The idea is to help them overcome their difficulties with the law and avoid future problems. These courts are open to the public, which I did not know. I plan on observing a session soon.

This issue of the Heliogram has a picture of me receiving MOAA highest chapter award – a 5-Star Streamer. I had the honor of accepting it at MOAA's annual meeting in Orlando. It is our ninth straight annual 5-Start award. It will be up to our incoming president, Bob Covalucci, to lead us to number 10!

VETERANS LEGISLATIVE AFFAIRS by Gene Fenstermacher, Col, USAF (Ret)

Last month I noted that Medicare Part-B premiums may increase significantly beginning in January 2016 even though there will be no Social Security Cost of Living Adjustment (COLA). Subsequently, the 20 November Legislative Update and some research and discussion with the Social Security Service Center shed more light on what those final increases will mean in 2016 for those currently enrolled in Medicare Part-B.

While Medicare beneficiaries see their Part-B premiums increase slightly from time to time for non-COLA related reasons, the increases scheduled for 2016 (shown below) are higher than we have ever seen, to my recollection. However, due to a “hold harmless” provision of the law, if there is no COLA for the year premiums are scheduled to rise, the minimum Medicare Part-B premium cannot be increased for those who have their premiums deducted from their Social Security benefits. But that only applies to those with the current minimum premium of $104.90 per month in 2015 as shown in the figures below. So while that means about 70 percent of Medicare beneficiaries, those with taxable income of $85,000 or less for individuals and $170,000 or less for couples, will see their Part B premiums remain at $104.90 per month next year. And if there is a COLA next year their premiums will rise to $121.60 in 2017 unless the premiums rise even higher next year.

However, other income groups will see large increases in their Medicare Part-B premiums for 2016. For example, those individuals with an annual taxable income above $85,000 up to $107,000, who have been paying monthly premiums of $146.90 for the past three years, will see their premiums rise by

$23.60 to $170.50 per month in 2016 even though there was no COLA this year. And earlier this Fall, the plan was for that to be about $223 per month instead of $170.50, which may portend what we might expect next year.

The figures below show the monthly premiums for all income groups for 2015 and what they will increase to in 2016 (except per the “hold harmless” provision as noted above):

Individuals	Couples	2015	2016
Under $85K	Under $107K	$104.90	$121.80
$85K - $107K	$170K - $214K	$146.90	$170.50

$107K - $106K	$214K - $320K	$209.80	$243.60
$160K - $214K	$320K - $428K	$272.70	$316.70

In an aside, and on a personal note, in my discussion with the Social Security service center I discovered some interesting information that I was not aware of. Although I will be filing as a single tax payer for 2016, my 2016 Medicare Part-B premium will be based upon my taxable income and joint filing status for 2014. And my 2017 Medicare Part-B premium will be based upon my taxable income and joint filing status for 2015. It won't be until 2018 that my Medicare Part-B premium will be based upon my taxable income and filing status as a single tax payer in 2016. If any of you are aware of any statute or regulation counter to that, please let me know.

Military Family Relief Fund (MFRF) Reminder:

2015 Donations to the MFRF were at $810,709 as of 19 November. With a cap of $1,000,000 annually there is still a little time to make that ‘donation’ as an Arizona tax credit (AZ Tax Form 340 - up to $200/individual or $400/couple). However, that donation must be received by 31 Dec 2015 to be credited to your 2015 AZ Tax Return, so don't hold off too long.

To make a donation, they need your name and address (for mailing your donation receipt) and the last four digits of your Social Security number (for tax credit reporting purposes). For more information and to download the MFRF Donation Form, go to AZ DVS link:

The Arizona Supreme Court and the Military Legal Services Committee of the State Bar of Arizona are sponsoring a website for veterans and active duty members. It's called Law for Veterans and can be found at www.lawforveterans.org. The website contains general information on a variety of subjects: employment law, health care, commercial law, the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (used to be the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act), VA benefits, criminal Law, and a links to resources also made available to all of the public. There is also a tab that lists legal clinics in the Phoenix area.

Of course, my colleagues are careful attorneys and have added the usual caveats. They note that this website is for general information purposes only. It's not legal advice. If you have a significant legal issue, it may be best to consult with an attorney. Retirees and active duty members may receive free legal counsel on a variety of issues from the legal office at Ft. Huachuca.

SWEET REVENGE

I was at the supermarket last week and with only 2 items, went directly to the express lane for 6 items only. I was fuming when I saw the lady in front of me pushing a cart piled high with groceries. Imagine my delight when the cashier beckoned her forward and said politely, "Which 6 items would you like to buy".

CHAPLAIN'S NOTES BY COL Tom Day, USA, Ret

Thanks to all the members of MOAA for your financial gift of $250 to support the Holiday Soldier Programs at Fort Huachuca. Also thanks for the food donations at the last meeting! This year the Thanksgiving Turkey program helped more than 200 enlisted families. The Giving Tree is still ongoing and you can get tags with the needs of children at five locations, including the Main Exchange at Fort Huachuca. So far, they are providing gifts for more than 250 children! We will collect non-perishable food products again in our December and January MOAA meeting for the Fort Huachuca Chaplain Food Locker. Thanks again for your giving spirit!

When I think of the Holidays, I think of lights. Happy Hanukkah to our Jewish friends as they celebrate the Festival of Lights from December 6 to 14, celebrating the triumph of light over darkness. Hanukkah began at the re-dedication of the Holy Temple in Jerusalem in the 2nd century B.C. to commemorate the miracle of one day's supply of oil that burned in the temple's menorah for eight days.

For Christians, the tradition of Christmas lights began in Germany in the middle of the 17th century. They used candles, which were attached to the end of the tree branches with wax or pins. Candles were rather dangerous, so now we use lights to represent shining stars, especially the one that led the Magi to baby Jesus.

May you have a blessed Hanukkah and Christmas season.

TREASURER'S NOTES. By Col Bob Abney, USA, Ret

It's time for 2016 chapter membership renewals.

Payment for those needing to renew, is due on January 1, 2016 and delinquent after March 1, 2016. Fees remain $15.00 for regular members and $10.00 for auxiliary members. The address label on your Heliogram indicates the final year of your membership. Example: If the address label shows 2015, then your membership expires at the end of 2015 and you need to renew for 2016.

You can remit your annual fees by using the Chapter Membership Application form in the monthly Heliogram newsletter and including the form and payment with your January dinner reservation or if not attending the January dinner, by mailing the form and your check to:

Treasurer - Dues
Coronado Chapter MOAA
P.O. Box 1685
Sierra Vista, AZ 85636-1685

Please make your checks payable to Coronado Chapter, MOAA

I would appreciate your prompt payment using one of the options above. This reduces the high postage expense of a general membership mailing and preserves the chapter operations fund for other necessary purposes. It costs the chapter roughly $150.00 in printing and postage for each mailing to remind members to renew. Please help us avoid this cost.

VA May Not Issue Veteran ID Cards Until 2017-(Military.com)

The new veteran identification card to be issued by the Veterans Affairs Department will not be available before 2017.

The wallet-sized proof of veteran status is intended to be a substitute for a paper document given to all veterans upon discharge. The ID requirement was signed into law by President Obama on July 20 and intended to be effective 60 days later, according to a House Veterans Affairs Committee staff member who agreed to speak with Military.com on background.

"VA has missed that deadline and will not provide a definite implementation date for the when the program will be up and running," the staffer said. "The committee has been pushing VA on implementation but the department seems to be punting it to the next administration ... VA currently estimates the program will be implemented in 2017."

He said VA has told House lawmakers is that the rule-making process -- including drafting the procedures, getting public comment and approval from the Office of Management and Budget -- is expected to take a year or longer.

VA did not respond to Military.com's request for confirmation on the projected 2017 start date, though said in a previous email that the process is "a much larger undertaking than it appears on the surface once you get into the actual logistics."

The veteran ID is intended as a way for veterans to prove they served in the military without having to carry around and present a DD-214, Certificate of Release or Discharge from Active Duty. The ID card law passed both the House and Senate by wide margins.

One of the leading veterans' service organizations criticized the legislation as unnecessary since many states already include veteran status on driver's licenses. VFW also criticized the move for adding yet another requirement on the VA, which continues to struggle with curbing its backlog of disability compensation claims, appeals of denied claims and wait-times for veterans seeking health care.

Veteran advocates for the card and other supporters argued that the ID will eliminate the need to produce their DD-214 to prove veteran's status, which can be both a hassle and add wear and tear to the paper document.

The DD-214 is needed when applying for federal benefits, not only from the VA but when applying for federal job and claiming veteran's preference.

In writing the ID law, however, Congress also recognized its commercial benefit to veterans, noting in the law that noting in the law that "goods services, and promotional activities are often by public and private institutions to veterans who demonstrate proof of service in the military, but it is impractical for a veteran to always carry [a DD-214] to demonstrate such proof."

Nearly all states will include veteran status on a driver's license or have bills pending to permit the inclusion. The most recent state to include veteran status on a license is California, where the law went into effect last week on Veterans Day.

SURVIVING SPOUSE'S NOTES by Director Jan Cole

FROM THE CHAPTER HISTORIAN

By LTC Tom Fail, USA, (Ret)

A SEASONAL VIGNETTE

He was born, the oldest boy in the family, on 26 September 1877 in Wandsworth, London, and was given his father's name Edmund Kellaway. His father was a British civil servant, and he groomed Edmund to take a position of power in the Empire. Edmund rather fancied a life at sea but he had poor eyesight and perhaps most importantly, he was his mother's darling, and she kept having visions of shipwrecks!

He attended both St. Olaf's College and King's College where he developed a strong inclination to the stage. When he told his father he had chosen acting as a career, there followed "a scene without parallel in Victorian melodrama." His father called the theatre "that sink of iniquity" then literally "showed him the door." Edmund made his first appearance on the English stage at age eighteen with a group of amateurs just turned professional, playing two roles, Dodo Twinkle and Damper, in Rogue and Vagabond. For a long time afterward he refused to go on stage without a false beard or some other disguise, fearing someone would recognize him and tell his father. During the next few years roles were hard to come by until 1899 when he made his first appearance on the West End in London in A Jealous Mistake. He then joined Edmund Tearle's Repertory Company, which toured the provinces, playing a different role each night. It was excellent training, in that he acted in everything from William Shakespeare to old melodrama.

In 1901 he married actress Minnie Terry. That same year they went to Australia and both acted there for three years then returned to London in 1904. He took a small part in In the Hospital, which led to his receiving a postcard from George Bernard Shaw, offering him a leading role as Straker, the Cockney chauffeur. He accepted and thereafter Shaw became a sort of professional godfather for him. He appeared in five more of Shaw's plays spending three years in Shaw's company, years which he called "the happiest I've ever had in the theatre."

From 1908 until 1915 he performed in new plays by noted playwrights of the time. Then WWI had begun and Edmund, despite his poor eyesight, was inducted into the army. Most of his time during "The Great War" was spent drawing supplies up to the front lines under fire. He was so successful at this task that, after a year as a Private, he received a steady stream of promotions until eventually becoming a Captain.

Following the War he and Minnie divorced but remained on affectionate terms. (Late in life, at the age of 78, he traveled from his home in California for a reunion with her in London. He told a reporter, "I never married again because I was very happy with my wife. I simply stayed faithful to the memory of that happiness.")

Also, after the war, he returned to the stage and, in 1921, made his first appearance in the US in A Voice from the Minaret and Fedora. From then until 1935 he appeared in many films and stage plays in both England and the US.

In 1935 RKO summoned him to Hollywood to portray Katharine Hepburn's father in Sylvia Scarlett (1935). From then on he was much in demand. In 1940 he was the delightful Mr. Bennet in Pride and Prejudice (1940), then made a 180-degree turn by playing a folksy assassin in Hitchcock's Foreign Correspondent (1940). Then came Charley's Aunt (1941) in which he romanced Jack Benny, masquerading as a woman. Other important films included The Keys of the Kingdom (1944), Between Two Worlds (1944), Bewitched (1945), Life with Father (1947), and Green Dolphin Street (1947).

But we remember him best as Edmund Gwenn (his stage name) for becoming the ultimate Kris Kringle in Miracle on 34th Street (1947). As soon as he got the part, Gwenn went to work turning himself into Santa Claus. Though rotund, Gwenn didn't feel he was rotund enough to look like the jolly old elf most people expected after having read Clement Moore's "The Night before Christmas". He could of course wear padding, but he resisted that as too artificial. So he put on almost 30 pounds for the role. Accepting the Oscar for Best Supporting Actor Gwenn stated, "Now I know there is a Santa Claus."
